ELECTRIC FENCE IS INEXPENSIVE

Low Amperage and High Voltage Advised.

By R. R. PARKS
(Extension Agricultural Engineer, University of Illinois College of Agriculture)

Electric fencing is becoming a definite part of good farm planning, but to be effective and safe, electric fences need high voltage and low amperage current.

The voltage, or "electric pressure," of the fence must be relatively high, 400 volts or more, to cause the current to discharge through the animal that makes contact with it; however, the fence charger unit must have some current limiting device or characteristic to keep the amperage low, less than 25 milli-amperes and not more than one charge per second. That charge should not be more than one-tenth second duration. A milli-ampere is a fraction of the current that goes through the ordinary small light bulb. Even 25 milli-amperes are dangerous for smaller animals or persons with heart ailments.

The reason the current should be intermittent rather than continuous is that animals coming in contact with an intermittent current will receive the shock and be able to step back before the next shock occurs. If they came in contact with continuous current they might fall on the wire and not be able to recover their footing.

Fence units are ordinarily inexpensive to operate. Most of the current which is actually used goes either through the animals or is lost through leakage owing to inadequate insulation of the live wire from the ground. Much of this loss can be eliminated and the fence made more effective by the use of properly designed porcelain or glass insulators. Many of the ordinary small spool insulators are inadequate for insulating the high-voltage fence.

There are two reasons why the electric fence may become ineffective. It may either be improperly insulated or a dry ground condition may prevent the animal from receiving enough current to be felt. In some instances a second wire has been run beneath the live wire, and "grounded" to the fence controller unit to give the animal a shock when touching the two wires. This works particularly well on hogs.

War Provides No Cure For Farmers' Problems

While the European war and the American defense program will stimulate business temporarily, decrease unemployment, and improve domestic demand for farm products, in the long run the war will only aggravate the farmer's problems, decares O. B. Jesness, chief of the division of agricultural economics at University Farm, St. Paul.

The loss of foreign markets for wheat, lard, tobacco, and some fruits cannot be offset by increased domestic demand, Dr. Jesness points out. Unless foreign markets recover, a serious agricultural surplus will remain until production can be shrunk to fit the smaller demand.

While a price boom is not in prospect at present, a long war and extensive war preparations may in time produce conditions favorable to inflation, Dr. Jesness declares. If a rise in prices occurs, it will be a good time for farmers to pay off some of the existing debts rather than to take on more obligations. An expansion of production would only make worse the depression which is sure to follow after war demands are cut off.

Electric Engine Can Handle Big Overload

Believe it or not, but a five-horsepower electric motor can develop three to four times the power of a five horsepower gas engine. However, when running at full load over a long period of time, they will both deliver the same amount of work.

The difference in the two engines arises from the fact that a gas engine has little overload capacity, while an electric engine will develop several times the rated power for short periods of time.

Machines often producing a temporary overload are ensilage cutters, wood saws, pump jacks, hay hoists and grain blowers.

Nitrogen in Apples

A 600 pound crop of apples from a vigorous tree 25 years old removes about one-third of a pound of nitrogen from the soil. For growth of its wood, bark, and roots such a tree uses about a half pound of nitrogen. The leaves used from a half pound to a pound of nitrogen in their growth and development, but this is restored to the tree and soil, and is not ultimately removed from the orchard.

If loss of nitrogen by leaching can be prevented, a pound of actual nitrogen a year for a tree in full bearing is an ample supply. Too much nitrogen checks the desirable coloring of the fruit. About 6 pounds of nitrate of soda or 5 pounds of sulphate of ammonia would supply a pound of nitrogen.

Motorist, Pedestrian Blamed

Both motorists and pedestrians are to blame for the high pedestrian death rate, the Michigan State Safety committee states. Twenty-six pedestrian deaths accounted for a fourth of the state's June traffic death toll. "When blinded by approaching lights, motorists must slow down," the committee's statement said. "There is no excuse for maintaining speed when visibility is seriously reduced. Pedestrians share the blame when they fail to walk on the left side of the highway as required by law. Three-fourths of all pedestrian deaths occur between 6 p. m. and 1 a. m. By concentrating upon the factors known to contribute to such night fatalities, it should be possible to reduce the death toll."

Father Darkleaf's Column

By C.H.R.

On looking into the mirror: "A hair on the head is worth two on the brush"..... I tried an electric shaving contraption for the first time recently, and the answer is 'no' ..... why is it every war time, women's dresses get shorter? ..... curious: does your speedometer add or subtract mileage when you drive in reverse?..... lost habit, business men propping their feet up on the desk ..... sign for a meat market: "your meat is tender as young love?" .....

There's not enough playing of games by town kids on Saturday and Sunday afternoons ..... Ben Franklin was in favor of the turkey instead of the eagle as our national bird ..... a famous woman doctor once said: "If women understood and how to cook it we could do away with operations" ..... what's this we hear about two members of Hebron church getting locked up Sunday in the church.....

How do you explain the fondness of nine out of ten people for a smutty story? Years ago we found out that even the most pious and dignified people liked to hear a smutty yarn, provided they heard it on the sly ..... an off-color joke will travel through town quicker than a five bomber through a flock of black-birds!

Do you get a copy of the Congressional Record? We do. And we read it, too. It costs $55 a page to print this account of what goes on in Congress ..... if you "eat out" it is a good idea to follow the crowd, for the bigger the volume of business the better the chances of getting fresh, well-cooked food.

People who complain that the local newspaper does not print ALL the news ought to be glad it does not! Every newspaper reporter has to know what not to print.....more important than knowing what to print.

"There'll always be an England, While there's a country lane, Wherever there's a cottage small, Beside a field of grain.

There'll always be an England, And England shall be free, If England means as much to you, As England does to me."

Listen, mister: keep our country sturdy if you want it to survive; England will survive because her people are still pioneers. Behold in the very hour when England itself is threatened with invasion and defeat, sturdy British soldiers strike out in Africa to win new victories for the Empire! It's a spirit like that of General Wavell and his men that makes a nation great! Let us keep the spirit of honest work and simple worth alive in this nation. Away with the crackpots and useless idlers, and those too timid to claim their destiny. Read this:

"Grandmother, on a winter's day
Milked the cows and fed them hay,
Slopped the hogs, saddled the mule
And got the children off to school;
Did a washing, mopped the floors,
Washed the windows and did some chores;
Cooked a dish of home-dried fruit,
Pressed her husband's Sunday suit,
Swept the parlor, made the bed,
Baked a dozen loaves of bread,
Split some firewood and lugged in
Enough to fill the kitchen bin;
Cleaned the lamps and put in oil,
Stewed some apples she thought would spoil;
Cooked a supper that was delicious,
And afterward washed up all the dishes
Fed the cat and sprinkled the clothes
Mended a basketful of hose;
Then opened the organ and began to play:
'When you come to the end of a Perfect Day!'"

The generations of Americans who lived by that selected poem gave us our heritage ... Westward Ho,... the 1849 gold rush ... Henry Clay, ...Model T's, ...Honest Abe, ...wonderful America. Shall we follow it up with a generation of sippers, manicures, washing machines, labor agitators, leaf rakers and quitters?

New Law On Brush Burning Now In Effect

W. W. O'Brien, chief forester of the county asks for the support and cooperation of all citizens of the county to curtail the number of fires, and to reduce the acreage that is burned in this county by forest fires each year.

"Brush burning operations," said Mr. O'Brien, "are one of the principal causes of forest fires in Virginia. It was for that reason that a new Brush Burning Law was passed by the last General Assembly, making a closed season on brush burning during the hazardous period of the spring except between four o'clock in the afternoon and midnight. The law in effect states:

Provisions of Law

"It is unlawful during the period beginning March 1 and May 15 of each year, even though precautions be taken to prevent its spread, to set fire to any brush, grass, stubble, or dead field containing dry grass or other inflammable material capable of spreading fire, located in or within 300 feet of any woodland or brushland, except between the hours of four o'clock in the afternoon and 12 o'clock midnight."

Penalties of Violation

"Any person violating any provision of this law shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than $10 or more than $100 for each separate offense. It is further provided that if any forest fire shall originate as a result of the violation of the provisions of this law, such person shall, in addition to the above penalty, be liable for the full amount of all expenses incurred by the State and county respectively in suppressing such fire.

"The provisions of this law shall not apply to fires which may be set within the corporate limits of any town or city, nor to fires set on rights-of way of railroad companies by their duly authorized employees.

"When there is brush, grass, debris or other inflammable material that it is necessary to clear away by means of burning, play safe and do the burning after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, as the law provides, when the winds have diminished and the moisture has begun to rise, because after that time fires are much easier to control.

"If a fire is seen or discovered which is uncontrolled, please notify one or more of the following forest wardens:

Long-Time Correspondence

A 65-year-old promise to exchange two letters each week gives three sisters a record for long-time correspondence.

It was in 1894 that Mrs. Harry Koerbel of Jeannette, Pa.; Mrs. Ola Lutz of Donura, Pa.; and Mrs. Walter Bradford of Marion, Ind. agreed to write their weekly letters.

Since then, two daughters of Mrs. Koerbel have joined the "round robin" correspondence and they estimate they've exchanged 17,576 pieces of mail.

The sisters began the marathon letter writing because they were forced to live in widely separated towns and they wanted to maintain contact.

The daughters of Mrs. Koerbel, Mrs. Al A. Engstrom of Ambridge, Pa., and Mrs. A. D. Welty of Greensburg, Pa., joined the letter "trust" 17 years ago.

The five women are proud of the fact that in the 45 and 17 respective years, they've never missed a "posttime." On postage alone, they estimate they've spent more than $800.

Not So Long Ago

Remember those primitive days of motor touring, away back there in 1928. An automobile editor brings up the scene. The tourist setting out for a vacation trip had his running board equipped with a luggage carrier, crammed with suitcases, a couple of spare inner tubes, a five-gallon can of gasoline and a gallon of motor oil. There was more baggage piled on the front fenders and tied to the headlights and hood handles. Then there were tents, blanket rolls, folding army cots and tent poles tied with rope to the top of the car and around the spare tire.

The toolbox was carefully checked before starting, and it was essential to have a can of tire patches and a piece of wire to open the gas lines when they clogged. There was generally a spotlight clamped on the windshield for night driving. There had to be driving cushions for comfort and eyeshades for the driver.

And all that primitive stuff only 12 years ago. Well, well!

BOARD TRANSFERS FUNDS AND AUTHORIZES LOAN TO FINANCE 9 MONTH TERM

A full nine month school term this session, with operation of the school buses, was assured yesterday when the Appomattox County Supervisors made the financial arrangements to enable the school board to have required funds.

Action of the county supervisors consisted of:

1. Authorizing a transfer from the county general fund of the sum of $8,700 and from the Dog Tax fund of $500, to the School Board. (This general fund transfer consisted of $2,000 from the county's share of A.B.C. Board profits; of $500 already promised toward operation of the library; of $963 toward the liquidation of the Pamplin school debt and $5,237 from the proceeds of the recent 15 cent raise in the tax levy.

2. Authorization for a loan of not to exceed $9,500, to enable the operation of the schools for the remainder of this term and to pay off a loan made last year.

Citizens of the county will be glad to hear that the problem of the operation of the schools and of the buses has thus been disposed of, for until yesterday's action of the supervisors, it had been presumed that the buses would not be operated the last 50 days of the session. Had the buses stopped running, pupils would have had to get to school the best way they could.

It should be stated that both the school board and the supervisors have worked faithfully on this problem and have made available funds to render the absolute maximum of service so that the public interest might be served to the fullest

IN MEMORIAM

BOCOCK—In loving memory of my wife, Mattie C. Bocock, who passed to her eternal reward, nine years ago.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tenderly, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear wife,
That I do not think of you.

My heart still aches with sadness,
And I shed many tears,
God only knows how I miss you,
After all these passing years.

Husband, W. F. Bocock.
